ORDERLY CHARTERMENT MOVES MAN FROM TOWN WHO HAD WRONG VIEWPOINT

A month ago a man dropped in here that no one knew much about. He secured a job as janitor in one of the buildings and the people who went in and out at this building paid no attention to him. They didn't know who he was and cared less. But a few days ago something uncommon began to happen. People in various sections of the city were receiving telephone calls and they couldn't find out who made the calls. The calls were not of the ordinary business calls, but a man's voice made indecent proposals and where the calls came from bothered them.

A quiet watch was kept and suspicion fell on the janitor who had mysteriously dropped in here from some place. The calls were traced directly to this man and when confronted last night about eight o'clock, he admitted his guilt. Said he didn't know what made him do it.

It seemed that he would look thru the telephone directory and where a phone was listed under the name of Miss or Mrs. he would make some note that no man was about the house and would make his proposal to the lady who answered the phone.

About half a dozen men who had interested themselves in the matter besieged him and wounding a number of others was arrested this morning by Chief of Police A. B. Pettit of Clay City, forty miles east of Lexington. If the belief of the authorities of that place is correct,

The man who gave his name as Hattley and said he was from West Virginia, answered the description of the long sought fugitive. In every particular and Chief Pettit is now awaiting an answer from the Virginia authorities in regard to the prisoner.

Chief Pettit received a letter Tuesday morning from Frank Wyatt of Jackson, Ky., who knows both Edwards and Allen, saying that Sidney Allen and Wesley Edwards were headed towards Clay City and giving him a description of the men. Pettit took the info and watched all trains and roads leading into the city. He arrested his prisoner as he was boarding a freight train to leave Clay City.

THE BUBBLING OF THE POT

POLITICIANS CHUNKING UP, FISHING HIRSES AND MARINA READY FOR EIGHT

Since Captain Hobson announced himself as a candidate for the United States Senate, much discussion has been heard on the streets. To the town and the papers of the state are full of politics and possibilities of politics.

Capt. Hobson made his announcement in Troy's day in two and during his debate with Mr. Hardy yesterday told him not to refer to the candidate for Senator Hobson's seat.

Capt. Hobson is well known over the state and has visited the wires several times before. He is a popular and a strong man and while mixing with Dothan people yesterday had many assurances of support for it is generally the opinion of the people of Dothan county that another man should be sent to Washington in Senator Johnston's place.

With Senator Johnston and Congressman Hobson in the race with Mr. Conner as a candidate for the Senate, Congressman Hobson will be a strong man in this section of the State and it would be expected that he would get more votes than either Johnston or Conner.

But the friends of Congressman Clayton say that he is going to make the race for the Senate and the people of the Wire grass would be slow to commit themselves to any one man till they know for certain whether Mr. Clayton intends to make the race for it is generally conceded that he would carry this section over any man in Alabama should he decide to enter the race.

Henry Clayton has so conducted himself since his election to congress that he would command the vote of his district were he to ask for the senate or any other office he might be fit to ask for.

When he has spoken on the subject it will be time for the Wire grassers to line up. If he wants it, they want him to have it. If he doesn't want it, they will probably like Capt. Hobson a majority over any man in the field.

WESTERN WIFE GO BACK TO FURTHER CENTRAL

Montgomery, Ala., June 14.—(Special) The Western of Alabama today filed notice with the Alabama Railroad Commission that the three cent passenger rate would be restored on that line beginning June 20 next. No word has yet been received from the Central of Georgia in regard to the matter but it is presumed that this line will do the same.

Nothing has been said as to the freight rates in the notice filed with the commission.

Shadows

By Dorothy Douglas

(Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary Friends)

There was no moon—the faint glimmer from the arc light phone in the huddled figure Trevor drew nearer the statue that stood in the center of the square, but the figure drooping near its base neither moved nor made sound.

A fogging damp midnight was not the time for a blader man or beast to be grazing the foot of a statue and Trevor approached the person there in keen sense of duty toward the interests of life sparing him on the dim light he could discern nothing, save a huddled mass. He solved the human wreckage gently with his walking stick.

From the darkness and shadows the ghostly outline of a white figure appeared like a mirage in the desert. Trevor caught his breath sharply and half revolved. The face was that of a woman, drawn and miserable. In its portrayal of abject failure. She would have made down again into that somnambiotic stupor of desolation had not Trevor prevented her by speaking.

"What is it?" he asked gently. "The girl raised a slender, tapering hand to her brow as if to brush away an imaginary shadow. When she spoke the low pitched anguish in her voice clapped at Trevor's heart with a throb unknown to him. He realized suddenly that he had never experienced big emotions.

"You are kind, she managed to say in that wretched voice that trembled even as a frightened child, but my faith is gone—faith in God in myself in art and even my faith in death on a piano given back gods and I have not the power to take myself."

Don't!" Trevor stopped her abruptly shrinking from the words that would have followed.

The woman drew a long weary breath and her head fell forward on her outstretched arms. Trevor stood a long moment looking down at the huddled mass that was the habitation of a woman's soul broken and utterly broken under by the hand of destiny.

But why? Trevor was acutely conscious of valuing his thoughts. He had some fears from one to the other of us, and it is, as it were, a fair exchange hands—so horribly wealthy we are. Will you let me give you the sum I won tonight?

An unusual pleasurable emotion swept over Trevor. After the baleful words had left his lips he realized how vicious was his giving the opportunity of rendering a service.

The girl looked up through the darkness her eyes straining toward Trevor's face. From his face her glance traveled to his arms and for the first time she seemed to realize that he was a son of the rich. And while she absorbed the picture, reviled in his words a new desire to have him out from her proximity. For what?

Or if you only wait a half hour, I would give you a half hour's time of life. I will work it down with every atom of my power and in the end I will win. I know I will win. She had risen to a point of great exaltation and stood before him again.

Trevor's fingers slipped from her shoulder and she writhed in the gloom of the night.

The girl caught at his coat. The girl slipped her fingers into his and the pressure was so complete that the man gripped it firmly. Afterward he released it.

Every trace of fraud had vanished from her voice, leaving in its wake a trail of untold depths. Trevor dragged his thoughts from the magnetism of her touch to the import of her next words.

"I could have but friends in the city upon whom I would have called but I have sacrificed everything and everyone for my art!" The girl was breathless, the great tempestuous outburst had responded quickly to a new inspiration. In a year's time I will no doubt be in a position to re-

Trevor stopped her with a gesture. "We will not talk of repaying any thing. The money is nothing to me—sometimes I am ashamed of having so much." He laughed a trifle unsteadily. He turned abruptly and took up a position under the light. When shall I make out the check to be questioned as he did so his book

Myra Collins the girl held him and stood near watching with eager eyes while he made out the check for $3,000.

Trevor folded the slip once across and put it into her hand. "If there should be any slight difficulty at the bank," he said, just as the cumber to telephone me." By way of afterthought he put a bill with-the check. You may need money tonight."

The girl was trembling and because she was incapable of speech she bent before he could stop her, and touched his hand lightly with her lips.

To a daze he turned and left her. It was many days, many months before Trevor came to realize that the incident beside the fountain had in reality occurred to a measure he looked upon the whole affair as a trick of imagination.

Some eighteen months later, while he was smoking his pipe a vivid memory of that day swept over him. The blinding touch of her fingers seemed very real and he thought a half instant touch as he gazed at her.

The door bell rang and a moment later Trevor was of along a package addressed to him. He knew suddenly intuitively that he had been expecting something, big to happen—something that would give him the won't have he had finally longed for.

The package revealed a statuette and a flat rough modeling of an afterward famous art treasure.

Trevor drew a long, happy breath and gazed at the figure of a girl in abandonment of failure! She was huddled at the base of a statue.

Trevor laughed aloud in the joy of the revelation. The girl was then living in his world and was breathing the air he breathed. She was not a wealth but a flesh and blood woman who had sent him a message in her statuette.

He glanced at the clock and jumped quickly to his feet. With haste and a swift taxi he could be with her inside of an hour.

He lost but a moment in conversation with his valet.

Telephone Miss Myra Collins at the Arts Club and tell her that James Trevor is on his way.

Very good sir, said Pipers.

And Miss Collins was waiting.

Cultivate Self Control.

When the worries and cares of the day first you begin to wear upon you and you chafe under the friction—be calm. Stop rest for a moment and let calmness and peace assert themselves. If you let these trifling outside influences get the better of you you are confessing your inferiority to them by permitting them to dominate you. Study the disturbing elements each by itself, bring all the will power of your nature to bear upon them and you will find that they will all be one melt into nothingness like sun and fusilage before the

TIMES ARE QUITE FUNNY

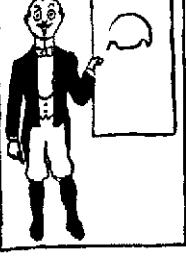

Boys Finally Show Boy Jumping on Springboard With Piece of Pin in His Hand

"Well," said the professor after his guests had ceased squirming in their seats and all conversations had been silenced. "If I could but draw your attention for a few moments and like to see which of you is brightest."

The professor selected a piece of wood and rapidly sketched a boy on a bill of white paper which he held in his hand. After I have finished this drawing, one of you could name it, how many of you can tell me to draw it just what it is?"

I know. I know. It's a boy who is two or three steps out from the ger audience. No, it isn't! It's a boy house, said a little boy who had been reading of Greenland. Others there who thought it might be a piece of watermelon with rinds out of it.

"Well," said the professor, "all your answers are very good, but none of me is what I intended this to be."

Old Woman Scrubbing

or let me add a few lines. What have we now?"

"We know!" shouted the entire audience. "It's an old woman woman, scrubbing the floor!"

"Good!" exclaimed the professor. "That's right. But seeing that you all agreed at once I still do not know if the brightest. I will draw more care on the paper while you are to draw a little on your hand for this next one."

He quickly erased a line here and there, drew in others and then stepped aside while the boys and girls racked their brains and imagination to tell the professor what was trying to do.

Finally after no one had made

"Oh, we see now," said every one.

GOOD QUALITIES OF LLAMA

"but what's that in his hand?"

"That is supposed to be a piece of mice pie," smilingly said the professor.

But nobody ever dives off a springboard with a piece of pie in his hand come from one sturdy little youth.

"Well, I just had that in for you to bite on," said the professor.

Dolls in Slime

Have you ever seen a Siamese girl kiss her doll? Well, you wouldn't know she was kissing it if you were not told for she kisses it in the same fashion that grown up Siamese kiss and that is by touching their noses and drawing in a long breath. It is really funny particularly is the dolls except the father and mother dolls wear no more clothes than the children themselves. The fathers and mothers wear strings of cloth wound round the middle of their bodies as the real people do. The dolls of the poor people are made of baked mud but children of rich people have wood on dolls which look much more like real dolls than the little mud figures.

Dollies Gossip

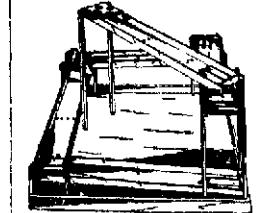

"Tommy— I think mamma is an awful gossip!— Phil— O Tommy! How can you say such a thing!— Tommy— Well she is! Everything that I do she immediately goes and tells papa I hate gossip."

AMUSING GAME OF BASEBALL

Apparatus Invented by Brooklyn Man Whose Mechanism is Controllable by Skill and Chance

Describing an apparatus invented by D. J. Behan of Brooklyn, N. Y., the Scientific American says:

The engraving is a perspective view showing the game apparatus complete. The invention relates to an apparatus whose mechanism is controllable partly by skill and partly by chance for playing an indoor game having more or less analogy to baseball. It comprises parts representing a baseball

Game Apparatus

Diamond or field and various bases disposed about the same, the parts being disposed so that the balls may be rolled from base to base and various other provisions being made for strikes, balls, home runs, base hits and putting out. The apparatus further comprises means whereby a ball (representing a player) reaches a base (it may have the effect of liberating other balls) located upon other bases and located more or less distant from the ball which it strikes them.

Boiling Things Soft

There are many things such as eggs that can be boiled hard and other things that can be boiled soft and one of them is the potato.

The potato belongs to a class of foods called starch because it is almost entirely composed of grains of starch. These grains are contained in a thin, woody sort of covering which will not expand as it is not elastic. If the potato were left in the ground it would need this starch for its future existence but when it is dug up and boiled something happens to the starch.

The hot water soaks through the hard woody covering and gets to the grains of starch which immediately begin to expand and as the hard covering cannot expand with it, there is nothing for it but to burst and by the time all the hard part of the potato has been broken up in this way and a quantity of water has been absorbed the potato is quite soft.

GOOD SANITATION IN HAWAII

Alpaca Variety Will Endure Much Hardship, But at Times is Extremely Bad Mannered

A hard working but at times bad mannered animal is the llama of the variety known as the alpaca. A special men has been presented to the Foreign Zoological Society and of the lives a writer in the Queen says:

An old writer Gringard Bullock says that in his time the llamas were employed at the mines in Ecuador. Alvaro Agustín de Zárate, who in 1844 was treasurer general of Peru wrote in praise of the llama which he called "sheep." Its great use to the natives who habitually ride it is that it used its flesh which was accounted as good as that of the fat sheep of

Washing Trough Placed in Dormitory of School Building for Boys to Cleanse Their Feet

That the animals of a boy school in Hawaii do not suffer from the cleanly habits of a simple contrivance is indicated by a new building, The Hawaiian School, at which

In the Hawaiian new feature has been adopted. It is the practice to wash the feet of the boys before they go to bed.

of a washing trough in which the boys can cleanse their feet before retiring for the night.

The trough is some thirty feet long and ten inches deep. The boys walk through the trough and each of them is handed a towel as he emerges. At the floor all around is cement the lads walk clean footed to bed.

Judge Sentences Dog to Death

It is almost as hard for me to sentence that dog to death as it is to sentence a fellow being to serve punishment but I must do it said Judge Kirk in police court to John Brennan who owned a fine black and white dog known as the Cincinnati Times Star.

The dog followed a woman to a butcher shop. It supposed the had some meat in her hand and leaped on her arms. The woman had Brennan arrested and Judge Kirk had the dog brought to court. There the canine made friends of everyone. But he had gone beyond the bounds of dog law. Brennan's eyes glistened as he walked from the courtroom. How am I going to tell the children that the dog is dead? he asked.

Boy Had a Reason

A prominent Bluff public man who is a smoker himself took a good story at his own expense. He entered an omnium of Bluff and found a dog inside pulling away at a cigaret.

My boy, he observed. If you smoke you will never grow a big man. Don't want to was the report. I'm going to be a n' joy's!

It is named the name used nearly two hundred years back by a traveler one Capt. George Shaddock, an Eng lishman who is far the best term for this animal which is fit many respects so like the true camel. In disposition llamas and particularly the alpaca variety are considered especially to Indians at the time all possessing independence of character it is a fine degree which often stands them in good stead as when at nightfall they slip to earth with their button

a sure sign of their determination to be unloosed and a sign which no sensible driver disregards. In it is soon learned that neither colts nor ponies trained at such times has any permanent power to change the creatures
